Market Validation

Thousands of people per month visit businesses, schools, and airports looking for plant-based snacks and food options readily available to them. Often they feel ignored. The plant-based industry has grown 600 percent within the past 3 years. We live in times where health is wealth. As a result, a growing number of regular consumers are buying plant-based snacks and food. That category represents the largest product segments at 29% and 25% of the industry respectively.

Our Vending Objectives

We focus on items that will be much healthier than the typical vending machine, but still taste good to the average consumer who may not have yet adopted a vegan and/or plant-based lifestyle. We want our products to represent our passion for humanity and nature while appealing to people's cravings.
